```
Q1
```

```
class Program
                                                 {
                                static void Main()
                                                 {
                                               try
                                                 {
            List<int> numbers = new List<int>();
Console.Write("enter the number of integers:");
      int count = int.Parse(Console.ReadLine());
                       for (int i = 0; i < count; i++)
                                                 {
    Console.Write($"enter the integers {i + 1}: ");
    int number = int.Parse(Console.ReadLine());
                         numbers.Add(number);
                                                 }
            for (int i = 0; i < numbers.Count; i++)
                                                 {
          for (int j = i + 1; j < numbers.Count; j++)
                                                 {
                    if (numbers[i] == numbers[j])
```

```
{
                              throw new Exception("there are a duplicated numbers!");
                                                                                     }
                                                                                     }
                                                                                     }
                                      Console.WriteLine("all the numbers are unique");
                                                                                     }
                                                                  catch (Exception ex)
                                                                                     {
                                             Console.WriteLine("error: " + ex.Message);
                                                                                     }
                                                                                     }
                                                                                     }
Q2
namespace ConsoleApp13
{
  using System;
  class Program
  {
   static void Main()
   {
     try
     {
       Console.Write("enter the text: ");
```

```
string input = Console.ReadLine();
  List<char> vowels = new List<char> { 'a', 'e', 'i', 'o', 'u',
                  'A', 'E', 'I', 'O', 'U' };
  bool hasVowel = false;
 foreach (char ch in input)
 {
    if (vowels.Contains(ch))
      hasVowel = true;
      break;
   }
 }
  if (!hasVowel)
 {
   throw new Exception("the text deosn't contain vowles!");
 }
  Console.WriteLine("there is a vowls in the text");
catch (Exception ex)
  Console.WriteLine("error: " + ex.Message);
```

}

{

}

}

}